DECLARATION OF RICK RIOBOLI OF COMCAST CABLE COMMUNICATIONS, LLC IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

I, Rick Rioboli, declare as follows:

1. My name is Rick Rioboli. I am Senior Vice President and Chief Information Officer of Comcast Cable Communications, LLC, which operates in Maine through Comcast of Maine/New Hampshire, Inc. In this role, I am responsible for leading Comcast Cable's information technology organization, which handles all technology and systems, including sales, account activation, billing, customer support, inventory, and customer information. I am also very familiar with Comcast Cable's network infrastructure and practices, and have significant experience developing and deploying software solutions, video applications, and video delivery systems.

2. I have worked for Comcast Cable since 2005. I previously served as Senior Vice President of Comcast Metadata Products and Search Services (2011-2017) and Vice President of Video Product Engineering (2005-2011).

3. I make this declaration in support of Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Injunction based on my personal knowledge and information that I have reviewed and confirmed with other Comcast employees with knowledge of subjects addressed in my declaration.

Background on How Cable Programming Is Currently Delivered

4. To provide cable service to its customers, Comcast Cable generally licenses channels of video content assembled and provided by video programming providers, commonly known as "programmers." Comcast Cable creates and distributes "tiers" and "packages" of channels that are attractive to various segments of consumers and that meet the demands of its customers. Illustrative copies of our channel lineups in Maine are attached to my declaration. As these local lineups demonstrate, Comcast Cable offers hundreds of channels in various tiers and packages to Maine subscribers. Each channel, in turn, exhibits individual programs such as scripted series, reality shows, news, movies, and sports and other special events. In addition, certain channels (such as HBO) and programs (such as boxing matches) are also offered on a standalone, or à la carte, basis, but only when contractual and regulatory obligations permit. In particular, Comcast offers hundreds of thousands of individual movies and programs to rent or purchase through its pay-per-view (“PPV”) and electronic sell-through (“EST”) platforms.

5. Based on my experience in the industry, other cable operators and multichannel video programming distributors (“MVPDs”) follow similar practices across the country, and have done so for decades. Even newer entrants into the video marketplace, such as online video providers that offer linear programming—i.e., the continuous scheduled programming stream offered on a single network 24 hours a day—(commonly referred to as “virtual MVPDs”), likewise offer programming in tiers and packages. These longstanding practices are reflected in standard licensing terms between distributors and programmers. In our industry parlance, contracts between cable operators and cable networks are called “affiliation agreements.” For broadcast programming, stations either authorize cable operators to exhibit their content pursuant to a “retransmission consent agreement” or (in some cases) can elect carriage without a contract or economic consideration under the “must carry” provisions in the Communications Act and FCC rules.

6. Most programmers seek broad distribution so that their content can attract the largest possible number of viewers. Larger audiences generate higher ratings and advertising revenues for programmers, which may help offset the license fees they charge distributors like Comcast Cable—and, in turn, can moderate the retail prices we charge customers. In licensing their channels to Comcast Cable, programmers commonly negotiate for their channels to be included in tiers and packages that are received by at least a certain number or percentage of subscribers (called a “minimum penetration level”), including, for example, any tier or package in which we carry certain competing networks. Because Comcast Cable generally pays license fees on a “per-subscriber” basis, these minimum penetration and packaging terms provide a steady stream of license fee revenues for the programmer.

7. Programmers want to preserve the content choices they make in developing a channel and building their brand. Most programmers prohibit Comcast Cable from disassembling a channel’s linear programming stream or offering their content on a program-by-program basis unless we have specifically negotiated for such rights and terms. These specifically negotiated rights could include, for example, those that Comcast Cable has obtained to make certain individual programs on a network available at no additional cost on an “on-demand” basis (i.e., when a customer wants to view the program as opposed to when it may be first shown on a channel). Comcast Cable includes video on-demand (“VOD”) viewing options as part of a subscription to a channel to increase the value of our services for our customers. Most programmers do not permit Comcast Cable to offer content that is live (e.g., a Red Sox game) or the first showing of a program on an à la carte basis, since doing so would decrease the viewership and the advertising revenues a programmer would normally expect to receive from the initial linear exhibition of the program.

8. Comcast Cable’s network infrastructure and information systems architecture—including our customer service operations and ordering, customer subscription management, and billing systems—are premised on the delivery of channels primarily as part of specific tiers or packages to which our customers have subscribed. For example, each Comcast Cable service offering, including service tiers, has its own unique internal “rate code,” i.e., billing code. Such codes are used in the ordering process and to control customer “entitlements” (i.e., the delivery of the services included in a customer's subscription), customer billing, and as part of "tracking" (i.e., recording the number of subscribers that have access to a network as part of a service tier) to determine the per-subscriber license fees owed to the programmer. With respect to Comcast's existing individual program offerings—i.e., PPV, EST, and VOD—these are all separately coded to deliver the service and for customer billing.

Harms Caused by L.D. 832's À La Carte Mandate

9. L.D. 832 would require Comcast Cable and other cable operators in Maine to "offer subscribers the option of purchasing access to cable channels, or programs on cable channels, individually." By its plain terms, the law mandates that cable operators make a programmer's channel—and even individual programs on the channel—available for consumers to purchase on an à la carte basis. In Comcast Cable's case, this would require us to make each of our hundreds of different channel offerings, along with each of the many thousands of individual programs shown on those channels, available for ordering, distribution, and billing on an à la carte basis. The costs and efforts to implement these changes to our existing practices would be staggering, and would divert resources from other programming, services, and technology enhancements we might otherwise offer. Moreover, the dramatic shift to à la carte would take months to attempt to accomplish, and could not possibly be done by September 19, 2019 (or anything close to that date), when the law becomes effective. If L.D. 832's à la carte mandates go into effect, they will irreparably harm Comcast Cable in several ways.

Impeding Comcast Cable's Editorial Choices for Programming

10. Comcast Cable expends great effort and resources developing its tiers and packages of cable services in order to attract as many customers as possible and provide them the best programming options and value. We try to ensure that our tiers and packages are generally structured the same in each local cable system throughout Comcast's cable footprint to take advantage of synergies of scale across broader geographic regions. We also spend millions of dollars branding, marketing, and promoting these cable service offerings in today's highly competitive video marketplace. L.D. 832 would upend these efforts, forcing us to disaggregate our carefully-tailored tiers and to develop Maine-specific processes to offer every channel and each program on a channel à la carte. Further, because L.D. 832 is directed solely at cable operators, no other MVPD or online video provider is subject to the law's à la carte mandates, even though these other providers typically offer tiers and packages similar to Comcast Cable. These other distributors would be free to continue to package, brand, market, and promote their programming offerings without any of the burdens or constraints imposed by L.D. 832, giving them unfair competitive advantages in the Maine marketplace.

Network Infrastructure and Customer Equipment

11. Implementing L.D. 832's à la carte requirements would significantly disrupt our cable business and practices in other ways, while also increasing costs for Maine consumers. Developing the means to deliver all of our hundreds of channels and thousands of channel programs on an à la carte basis would be extremely complex, particularly since the number of possible programming combinations a customer may select—and the number of corresponding internal billing and offer codes—would grow exponentially. Creating hundreds of new per-channel billing codes and hundreds of thousands of new per-program offer codes for Maine to authorize, deliver, bill, and track these individual offerings would, on its own, be a Herculean effort.

12. Comcast Cable's existing network configuration and infrastructure in Maine cannot support à la carte delivery. At a minimum, it would require fundamental changes to our cable headend equipment and other facilities throughout Maine and elsewhere, which would be very costly. And because such modifications would be untested, there is no certainty that these system changes would be sufficient to enable à la carte offerings. And since we provide multiple services over our private managed cable network, these modifications also could cause significant disruptions to our cable, broadband, voice, and other operations, adversely affecting our ability to deliver other services to Maine customers.

13. In all likelihood, Comcast Cable would have to launch an Internet Protocol (“IP”)-only version of its cable services in Maine in order to enable the necessary capabilities to deliver the channel-by-channel and per-program service offerings mandated by L.D. 832. Transitioning Comcast Cable’s network in Maine to IP-only video would require significant development and resources and could take up to a year to complete.

14. In attempting to comply with the law as quickly as feasible, we would also have to change and upgrade the cable equipment (e.g., set-top boxes or digital television adapters (“DTAs”)) for most local customers. Thousands of our Maine cable subscribers have legacy devices that are not capable of receiving content on an à la carte basis and are not compatible with IP-only delivery. Comcast Cable would need to be prepared to replace these legacy devices with thousands of our more advanced “X1” addressable set-top boxes. This would involve significant costs both in procuring and storing the necessary equipment, as well as in exchanging customers’ equipment. Replacing these legacy devices will be time-consuming and inconvenient for our affected customers, resulting in a loss of goodwill that could not be recovered. Depending on certain customers’ existing equipment (such as those leasing more limited-functionality devices like DTAs), upgrading to new X1 boxes would increase their monthly equipment fees.

Ordering Systems and Customer Service

15. Similarly, implementing Maine's à la carte mandate would require Comcast Cable to make substantial changes to its ordering systems, including online ordering systems through the Comcast website, our mobile app, as well as on-screen ordering through customer set-top boxes. Each of these platforms is currently designed to address the needs of all consumers throughout our cable footprint in the United States. The platforms work in a similar manner. Implementing the Maine à la carte requirements would force us to create Maine-specific platforms. We would also have to devote substantial resources for additional customer service support staff and training on these new systems and the hundreds of thousands of new billing and offer codes associated with each à la carte offering. Comcast customer service agents would also have to learn how to process à la carte orders placed by telephone, and to help customers troubleshoot program delivery or other issues. Customer service call times and call volumes typically increase to some degree with new service offerings. In this instance, I expect these increases would be multiple times greater given all of the potential program ordering options and other complexities involved, as well as the likelihood that the availability of substantially more order combinations would lead customers to modify their subscriptions more frequently.

Customer Billing

16. Likewise, Comcast Cable would have to substantially modify its billing systems and monthly subscriber bills for Maine if L.D. 832 goes into effect. Our billing systems across the country are currently equipped to handle a discrete number of tiers and packages and their associated billing codes, and, thus, customer bills are relatively streamlined. The hundreds of thousands of individual channel and program permutations created by L.D. 832 would require overhauling these billing systems. This could also significantly complicate customers' monthly bills, some of which could be dozens of pages long depending on a household's à la carte ordering volume—contrary to our increasing efforts to further simplify customers' bills. Moreover, frequent modifications to a customer's à la carte programming selections would further complicate the billing process. Comcast Cable would again incur substantial costs to make these billing system changes, as well as for additional printing and postage costs, further increasing our operational costs in Maine and the upward pressure on local cable rates. Longer, more complex bills would likely also cause customer confusion and increase the number of customer billing inquiries and disputes, hurting Comcast Cable's reputation with our customers.

Higher Prices for Maine Consumers

17. Even assuming Comcast Cable could overcome all of these very substantial hurdles and costs, many à la carte prices for our channel and program offerings would be higher, not lower, for consumers as a result of L.D. 832. The distribution of channels as part of a service tier under existing cable practices creates economies of scale, allowing programming costs to be spread out over a broader number of subscribers. This cost-spreading, in turn, enables Comcast Cable to provide more programming choices at lower prices to consumers. An à la carte regime would eliminate these economies of scale.

18. Because most of our existing affiliation and retransmission agreements do not permit à la carte distribution of a programmer's channel, but instead specify placement on a particular tier or for a particular penetration level, Comcast Cable would have to negotiate accommodations for L.D. 832's requirements with each programmer, including the pricing of à la carte content offerings. Each network programmer may also have to negotiate new rights and deals with copyright owners—the content suppliers—to authorize the licensing of the programmer's channel and the individual programs carried on the channel on an à la carte basis to cable operators in Maine. I understand that these efforts too would require substantial resources and costs, strain relationships with our content partners, result in actual or threatened programming blackouts, and could lead to litigation.

19. And even if such accommodations could be reached, I have no doubt that programmers would in turn demand much higher license fees from Comcast Cable in order to offset the decline in viewership and loss of advertising revenues resulting from mandated à la carte distribution. Reduced viewership would also harm our ability to sell advertising spots on our Maine cable networks, leading to a similar loss of advertising revenues for Comcast Cable. All of these revenue reductions would require the retail pricing of à la carte content at rates that are higher—in many instances, substantially higher—than the rates our Maine customers currently pay to receive the same programming as part of existing packages and tiers of service.

Competitive Harms

20. Comcast Cable faces substantial and increasing competition for video customers in Maine and other places from a growing number of traditional and Internet-based video distributors (e.g., DIRECTV and DISH Network, Netflix, Hulu, Amazon Prime, Apple TV+, Sling TV, AT&T TV NOW, Hulu + Live TV, YouTube TV, PlayStation Vue). Because L.D. 832 applies only to cable operators, none of these other distributors would have to incur the costs, burdens, disruptions, or other harms in their relationships with programmers and customers that we would experience, even though these competitors generally follow the packaging/tiering model described above and often serve many more subscribers than Comcast and other cable operators in Maine. This disparity would put Comcast Cable at a significant and unfair competitive disadvantage in Maine, resulting in the further loss of local customers and goodwill.

I declare, under penalty of perjury, that the foregoing is true and correct.
